Proposed Revisions to Senate Regulation 630.D

March 1, 2017

Under review are proposed revisions to Senate Regulation 630.D, put forward by the University Committee on Educational Policy (UCEP). The amendments recognize the UC Natural Reserve System (NRS) California Ecology and Conservation course as a systemwide course that can satisfy UC's senior residence requirement along with the Education Abroad Program, UC Washington, D.C., Program, and the UC Center in Sacramento Program.

Special Academic Programs

February 21, 2017 9:06 PM

The Committee on Special Academic Programs (SAP) of the Undergraduate Council of the Davis Division of the Academic Senate supports the proposed revisions to Senate Regulation 630.D, allowing the NRS California Ecology and Conservation course to satisfy UC's senior residence requirement. In addition to the proposed revision itself, SAP members reviewed information about the course on the NRS website and were very favorably impressed. The course is taught by UC faculty on UC property managed by UC personnel and therefore meets or exceeds the degree of UC participation and oversight found in the Education Abroad Program, UC Washington DC Program, and UC Center in Sacramento Program, all of which currently satisfy the senior residence requirement.
