Final Review: Revision to APM 015 - Faculty Code of Conduct

January 10, 2013

The system-wide review is intended to confirm that revisions to the proposed policy reflect the comments received during the previous system-wide review. Final review is not anticipated to lead to additional changes in the proposed policy. Please note, as described in the attached Executive Summary, that revisions were originally proposed to APM 010, 015, and 016. In response to extensive comments received from Senate and Administration respondents to Management Review and System-wide Review, changes are no longer proposed to APM 010 and 016. The proposed addition to APM 015 originated with the Senate and was modified by the Office of General Counsel.

Final Review of Proposal to Revise APM-015

Comments from the Committee on Academic Freedom and Responsibility - Davis Division

The proposed revision to APM-015 does not accomplish the original goal of protecting or enhancing academic freedom. By placing the revision only in APM-015, which primarily describes limits, and by placing restrictions on the conditions under which speech is protected, the revision would seem to have the opposite effect. We oppose the revision.
