Proposed Name and Curriculum Change for the Women's Studies Major and Minor

April 3, 2015

The College of Letters and Science has proposed changing the name of the Women's Studies major and minor to Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies. In addition to a name change the college is in favor of significant changes to the curriculum for both the major and minor. The proposal is provided for review by standing committees to inform the decision made by Undergraduate Council. Undergraduate Council review will occur after the comment deadline has passed.

Planning & Budget

CPB reviewed and discussed the Proposed Name and Curriculum Change for the Women's Studies Major and Minor. CPB sees no budgetary implications of the name change. The committee is unclear about whether there are sufficient teaching resources for all of the new courses, but they have hired new faculty and have at least one more hire pending so it seems likely that they will.
